- What do I want to learn or understand better?
- How can I help someone else, or the entire team, to learn something new?
- What is my contribution towards the team's use of Scrum? What is my contribution towards the team's deliveries?

I finished task 10 and task 11 this sprint and I have learned a lot since last sprint. This sprint was less stressful for me and I managed to finish my tasks in time. Why I spent less time this sprint on my user stories was because I started by doing research first and figured out what was required to solve the problem I had in front of me. Before I would start coding before even understanding the problem at hand. This is something I will continue doing during the rest of the project. Another reason why I succeeded in this sprint was because I received help from our team support to understand the workflow on github parallel with fork, the git client that we use to push our code to github. Understanding the basics helped me spend more time on other things. Also the most important part to my success was asking questions, no questions are dumb so you don't lose anything by asking questions.

There are a lot of steps to remember so I have a plan to make a document where I write these steps and instructions and share it with my teammates. Hopefully it will help others just like it will help me.
